

Contemporary Issues in Medical Education

Courses covering “hot topics” in education April 2017

Human Factors & Resilience
5th April 2017 (Morning session)

“Medicine has become a battlefield”- quote from the President of the European Association of Physician’s Health 2015. From Junior doctors strikes to increasing workload to suicide, we are increasingly scrutinised for our human fallibilities. The understanding of human performance by minimising mistakes (human factors) and improving self-awareness and skills (resilience) will be introduced in this.

Becoming an Effective Mentor/Mentee
5th April 2017 (Afternoon session)

This option will give participants the opportunity to further their knowledge of mentoring and to develop the skills to get started on or to improve a mentoring partnership.

For an application form to book your place
please e-mail: medicaleducation@cardiff.ac.uk
Tel: 02920 68 7451

Creating Educational Change
7th April 2017 (Morning session)

We live and work in an environment where change is constant and health professionals with an interest in education are likely to become involved in educational developments. Models and techniques for planning and implementing change will be introduced. Factors that aid or inhibit change will be discussed.

Cardiff venue. Course fee: £45 per half day session. The courses held are dependent upon sufficient demand.

www.cardiff.ac.uk/pgmde/medicaleducation